

KEEP IT PUSHING

My name is Gilbert J. I am an American blog writer from Los Angeles, California. Born with Spina Bifida, I've always wanted to use my life challenges to help and inspire others who have shared similar experiences.

Everything I have been through and all the personal knowledge I've gained, I can share with others. My motivation in launching this blog is that it'll make the process a little easier for the next person. By highlighting adaptable products and available resources, Keep It Pushing e-newsletter is your virtual buddy for quality information.

January Awareness Spotlight: BlindUnited.Org

Welcome to the first newsletter of the year. This month, I'm highlighting a new resource company: BlindUnited.org. This is an informational website designed to generate a sense of community specifically for visually impaired individuals who have accessibility needs and questions.

The owner of BlindUnited.org is Brittney M., a young lady I've personally known her entire life, who is also visually impaired herself. Brittney understands the difficulty and complexity of the visually challenged or impaired community, which inspired her to create this site in the first place. Having experienced impairment her whole life, as opposed to someone who once had their sight and then lost it, Brittney M., now in her thirties, has faced these challenges firsthand.

The whole purpose and function of the site and its social media platforms is for visually impaired individuals to contact Brittney M. or her staff with accessibility, legislative committee-based, or inclusion questions. Someone affiliated with the organization will accommodate answering your questions or at least...

As a nonprofit that has been around for about a year, the ultimate goal is to open a brick-and-mortar location to be used as a visually impaired learning facility. I'm not entirely sure if there are any fees attached to the services but the many ways to contact them, I'm sure you can get clarity on that. At the moment, I don't think they are hiring—disabled or otherwise—but as the platform grows, I'm sure they will be more than willing to provide opportunities through either employment or resources.

Well, this concludes what I have for you in January. Until next time, this is Gilbert J. for KeepItPushing.org. Thank you!
